My Dear Ijuoko,

CONDOLENCE MESSAGE

It was with a extreme sadness that I received the news of the passing of Dr. Nowamagbe Omoigui, a distinguished Edo son, who died at the age of 62.

Although Nowa was better known as a revered and respected civil-military historian and cardiologist, he was a very fine and distinguished ambassador of Edo State. A proud and noble Edo son, he excelled in his endeavours, displaying remarkable intellect and diligence to the admiration of the whole world.

Possessing rare insights into the history and intrigues of the Nigeria Civil War, Nowa stood out as an authority in Nigerian post-independence history who approached the subject matter with candour. As a trained medical doctor, he excelled on the job, making landmark contributions in the area of intervention cardiology.

I commiserate with Daddy Dan Omoigui and his siblings, friends and associates of Nowa and pray that God grants them the fortitude to bear the irreparable loss.

As always, please be assured of my highest regards.
